Business Strategy

Regardless of your size, every business needs a plan - a strategy that defines your vision, your goals and objectives and how you are going to reach them. But having a business strategy will allow you to take your business to the next level.

Does a business strategy have to be complicated? Not at all! Some business plans can fit on just three sheets of paper - but we work with clients to help define a business strategy which will help to:

- Clarify your vision
- Explore the right business model for your business
- Brainstorm on new products and services
- Assess resource levels and infrastructure requirements

- Craft long-term and short-term goals
- Set your revenue and expense model
- Scope out the competition

Marketing Strategy

We work with clients to develop an integrated and cohesive marketing plan which allows each marketing technique to support the others - thereby creating a synergy of branding and growth for your business.

Such a marketing strategy will help you to:

- Determine if there is a realistic (and profitable) market for your products and services
- Define long-term and short-term marketing goals
- Define marketing campaigns
- Create marketing strategies
- Select powerful marketing techniques that will showcase your products and services
- Choose a brand and image that truly reflects your business
- Design marketing materials
- Design Internet / social media marketing strategies
- Track marketing results to determine the strongest techniques

Sales Strategy

Trying to sell your product or service without having any formal strategy or plan of how you intend to go about this and consequently having an unplanned approach will certainly yield far poorer results and is more than likely to fail than if you had adopted a strategic approach to your overall marketing and sales campaigns.

It's all about following a process.

A sales strategy consists of a plan that positions your organisation's brand or product or service to gain a competitive advantage. Successful strategies will help your sales people focus on target market customers and communicate with them in the most relevant, meaningful and productive ways.

Sales people within your organisation need to know how your products or services can solve customer problems and satisfy a customer need. A successful sales strategy will convey this properly so that they spend time targeting the correct customers, in the right way and at the right time.

And just as importantly, sales people need to know where they shouldn't be spending their time i.e.: with customers who don't have a need to buy, are only information gathering or indeed are just time wasters. This comes down to effective sales account planning.

Developing the right sales strategy will help you to:

- Target better qualified suspects and prospects
- Produce detailed realistic and achievable business forecasts
- Develop quality sales account planning methodologies
- Assess your 'real' resource requirements
- Right skills, right place
- More effective time management
- Conduct performance assessments
- Help to develop the 'right' business, not the 'wrong' business

Internet Marketing

We work with clients to help them define their online marketing strategy and create a cohesive, integrated plan which can include:

- Planning for a new website or a face-lift for an existing site
- Determining why your website is not bringing in business
- Discussing the use of SEO and other marketing techniques
- Determining where social media fits into your internet marketing mix
